SAMPLE

Consider this: we humans generally brush our teeth twice a day and we are advised to have a teeth cleaning twice a year. The frequency of dental cleaning for a dog depends on diet, age, health, breed and brushing frequency. Since there is less risk with non-anesthesia teeth cleaning method we recommend more frequent cleaning more in-line with the human experience. We also have a pricing structure that will foster more frequent cleaning. When you see a tan or brown color on the teeth then it is time to have their teeth cleaned.

After

We will be glad to help you learn to brush your dog's teeth. If you have tried to brush your dog's teeth and are having difficulty, we advise you not to attempt it as your dog can learn inappropriate avoidance behaviors that will make brushing your dog's teeth or having them cleaned in the future more difficult.
